

“Turn Your Eyes Upon Jesus” by Laszlo Lak, Jr.

So much fuss over life on this speck of dust,
as if this is all we get!
If history has taught us anything,
it's that man has not successfully ruled over man yet!

Corruption, greed, still we proceed
to look on earth for the one,
How blind are those who will not see,
that the only life is in the Son.

It matters not the here and now,
or what has been in the past,
except only to recognize things done for Jesus,
for they alone will last.

Time to turn our eyes upon Him who made us,
and pray that He make us bold.
From dust thou camest, to dust thou shalt return,
was not spoken of the soul.

Not only for the here and now;
there's an eternity to face.
So let's stay focused in God's Word,
and so with victory finish the race.

So much fuss on things so temporal,
energy wasted, lives lived in vain.
“Who will go? And who shall I send?”
God's message must be proclaimed!

From those who've tasted the Lord's love, peace, and joy,
This solemn truth remains:
Turn your eyes upon Jesus, and you will never be the same.
